

Noverant Inc. Flies into the World of Aviation

Noverant Aviation Training & Verification (NATV)

RTP, North Carolina Jan 29, 2007 FlightGest, Inc., a mid-Atlantic charter service located in Raleigh NC, has chosen Noverant, Inc and its web-based Noverant Aviation Training and Verification (NATV) solution to effectively facilitate all of its training and information disbursement. Through the use of NATV, FlightGest is now able to monitor and manage all of its documents and training materials through the web.

“As FlightGest has grown over the past several years, the costs associated with the distribution and management of training, safety, human resource initiatives and procedures, and other documentation also grew”, stated Dr. Gozzo, FlightGest CEO. He further commented, “Once we saw the cost benefits provided by Noverant for FDA-regulated industries, it seemed logical to try the same technology in our FAA-regulated world.

Utilizing Noverant’s proven technology with email notification of upcoming requirements, government-approved electronic signature capability, records retention, online assessments and auditing capabilities, we now provide web based training to our pilots, anywhere in the country. Key topics related to pilots, aircraft, airports, operational control, airport-specific safety are easily and cost effectively distributed to individuals, and complete records are kept in one central and highly secure location. The endless paper work and follow-up of who has, and has not received, particular training and/or important information is a thing of the past. One screen let’s us see everything.”

Underwriters Are Impressed

The NATV solution has been introduced to leading aviation underwriters and the feedback has been impressive. “As an insurance broker, I look at this as a great way to genuinely mitigate risk,” said Todd Guelich, account executive at AirSure, Ltd. He further stated, “While many organizations provide disparate pieces of training material, FlightGest is the first, to my knowledge, to make use of a web-based training management system that genuinely adds value to any pilot, flight department or charter operator.”

Curtis Noack, COO of Noverant stated, “We have been successful in meeting the needs of our FDA-regulated clients, and the similarities to FAA-regulated industries is very strong. Our relationship with FlightGest has far exceeded our expectations and confirms that the web-based Noverant Aviation Training and Verification solution can not only reduce costs for flight schools, charter operators, FBO’s, and corporate flight departments but also greatly improve pilot training as well as automate their training, information distribution and employee notification across the entire enterprise.”
